Colombia Earthquake Kills 132, Ukraine Strikes Deep Into Russia, Trump Demands War Reparations From Iran

Strategic Brief

August 11, 2026

The Bottom Line

Colombia's 7.4 earthquake dominated the day with over 130 dead and widespread destruction in the coffee-growing west, testing a brand-new president just days into office. Ukraine demonstrated its deep-strike reach again with a lethal drone attack on Tatarstan, killing at least 13 — while Russia shut down the last anti-war party before next month's Duma elections. Trump's demand that Iran pay war reparations signals the Hormuz negotiations are stuck, compounding domestic pressure from rising oil prices ahead of midterms. Netanyahu's rejection of the Gaza peace plan looks tactical for an October election but delays an already fragile process. And record ocean temperatures coupled with deepening European drought are turning climate stress into a compounding crisis for water, food, and energy security.
